What: OHS & forensic mental health

Who: Craig Ramadge, Health Safety & Wellbeing Advisor, Forensicare

Details: As many of you know, Victoria is entering a new era of workplace safety with the upcoming implementation of the OHS (Psychological Health) Regulations, set to take effect in December 2025. Craig Ramadge's presentation will draw on his experience working in the area of forensic mental health to explore the implications of Victoria's new psychosocial regulations for employers and employees.

Craig will take us through the unique physical and mental health challenges faced by workers in forensic mental health roles, and how the changes to WorkCover Mental Injury claims in Victoria impact these workers. He will also offer practical strategies for creating safer, more supportive workplaces, with an emphasis on the importance of early intervention, trauma-informed care and organisational resilience.

Whether you work in corrections, mental health services, law enforcement or community support, this session is designed to equip you with insights and tools to better protect psychological wellbeing in your workplace.
