

Central Safety Group Meeting

June 2017

Safety In Design

Book Now

What: Managing Risk By Incorporating Safety In Design

Who: David Trembearth, Safety Business Partner, People and Product Safety, Coles.

Details: Poorly designed work is unsafe work. Many times simple but important aspects are overlooked in the project planning stage, setting the scene for future problems.

David will talk about how putting safety in design at the forefront of project management and at the concept stage is crucial to risk reduction, both from a people management perspective and an organisational perspective.

He will outline some of the steps in optimising safety when designing and managing a project.
